FLORIMEL

Homer Grunn has produced a song. Homer Grunn has produced a song, the interesting feature of which is a long recitative in the middle that works up to the fortissimo climax on A, and also has an effective ending. The song is dedicated to Schumann Heink and would be extremely effective for her voice with its extraordinary range. It is especially suited to heroic tenor (or very high baritone), or to a dram hie soprano. er to a dram die coprano.

MARIONETTE MARCH AND PIERREITE, FROM THE MARIONETTE SUFTE (PIANO)

George F. Boyle has written some lainty, flowing music for his Marion-ette Suite. Pierrette—a graceful, melodious waltz—is more original and attractive than the march. In the trio of the waltz there are some ascinating and clever harmonic sequences. Either of these would make an a ractive, short recital or encore number. They are not difficult technically—about third grade.

GOLDENHAIR.

A dainty song by Elliot Griffis, especially good for an encore. The composer has a real feeling for at-mosphere. Simple as the words and mosphere. Simple as the words and olde part are, there is much attrac-ive color in the accompaniment which is not at all differ?
